Navy Pier Marina

The idea for a recreational marina at Navy Pier began decades ago among passionate boaters who recognized its potential. After years of planning, in 2025 the project was brought to life by developer Randy D. Podolsky—a Chicago native, dedicated boater, and proud member of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. Today, Navy Pier Marina is Chicago's only privately funded and independently operated transient marina, offering boaters a one-of-a-kind way to experience the city's vibrant lakefront.

Year 2 | Navy Pier Small Business Accelerator Program

Navy Pier's Small Business Accelerator Program, supported by BMO, served 11 small businesses representing 10 Chicago-area neighborhoods in 2025. Through a multi-week, onsite program, participants built practical skills in merchandising, social media strategy and content planning, e-commerce optimization, and business pitching, supported by mentorship and direct engagement with industry experts. The program also created opportunities for peer learning, networking, and specialized workshops, including BMO's Zero Barriers to Business.

The program culminated with featured participation in the Winter WonderFest Artisan Market, where participants generated more than $25,500 in sales across six weekends, demonstrating measurable business growth and expanded market access for local entrepreneurs.

Introducing Local Soul

In November, Navy Pier proudly launched Local Soul, a new retail concept designed to elevate Chicagoland entrepreneurs by providing a dedicated platform to showcase and sell their products.

Through a curated, rotating selection across fashion, art, home goods, food, and design, Local Soul expands visibility and market access for local creators while prioritizing diverse, locally owned businesses and amplifying underrepresented voices.

More than a retail space, Local Soul strengthens the pathway for small businesses to grow by connecting emerging entrepreneurs to a year-round, high-traffic marketplace and deepening Navy Pier's commitment to community through commerce.

“The initial enthusiasm for Local Soul has been overwhelming. Being able to provide a retail space for the eclectic mix of creators and entrepreneurs that Chicago has is something we take great pride in. While the products speak for themselves, so many of the business owners we are working with have incredible and inspirational stories that we can't wait to see shared with the world.”

Martha Wade, Chief Curator of Local Soul

LOCAL SOUL

In the Entrepreneurs' Words

I had the opportunity to share my brand and expand my demographic of consumers. I am truly grateful for the opportunity to have products at Local Soul. The store concept is unique and offers shoppers a whole experience of Chicago brands.”

Kingston James, Kingston James & Company

Definitely great exposure for my brand. I gained more social media followers and people came back to me for jewelry repair/polishing service. And hopefully for future jewelry making workshops since they all showed interest!”

Employee Spotlight

▲ Gregory K. Porter

Training and Development Manager

I've been employed at Navy Pier for 18 exciting years, and the voice of the Pier since 2011 for announcements during our seasonal and fireworks programs. Leadership recognized my talents as an announcer, speaker, photographer, and leader of people, affording me with opportunities to create and execute seasonal orientations for Pier Park, capture images of exciting public programs and historic renovations, build an effectual team, and move to Training and Development Manager.

Navy Pier reflects Chicago's character. It is an organized collage of sorts, comprised of various cultures and experiences that make up our very own unique COMMUNITY. Having the opportunity to meet, serve, and directly leave favorable impressions on such a huge diversity of guests, tenant partners, and Navy Pier staff is grand.

Gregory's Recommendation

Global Connections is tremendous! It evolved from the successful Neighborhoods of the World, and increasingly serves to educate, entertain, and unify locals and others within our safe, attractive, and hospitable environment.

Philanthropic Support

A Chicago ExPIERience

Three decades ago, Navy Pier underwent a landmark reimagining that forever changed how Chicagoans and visitors experience this beloved destination.

Friends, partners, and leaders came together for this momentous occasion, making A Chicago ExPIERience a fitting tribute to that anniversary. Acrobats, brass bands, and carnival lights transformed the Family Pavilion and Crystal Gardens into a celebration of creativity, culture, and connection.

Recognition of the Pier's redevelopment would not have been complete without the night's honoree, Mayor Richard M. Daley. His vision for a global city came to life on Navy Pier – a platform for the community, artists, local businesses, audiences, and international travelers.

I always have known the power of people throughout this great city working together to make it an even better one today.”
